

I Don't Care User Guide

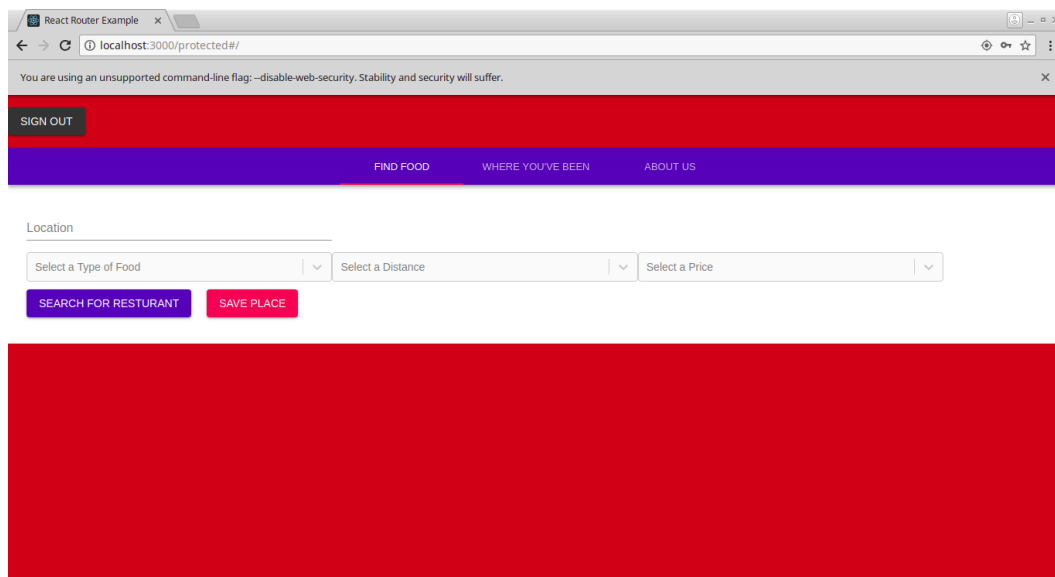

I don't care is a website designed to allow users to find a random restaurant that is close to their location. The user can also select the type of food, the distance away from the user, and the price of the food at the restaurant.

Login Page

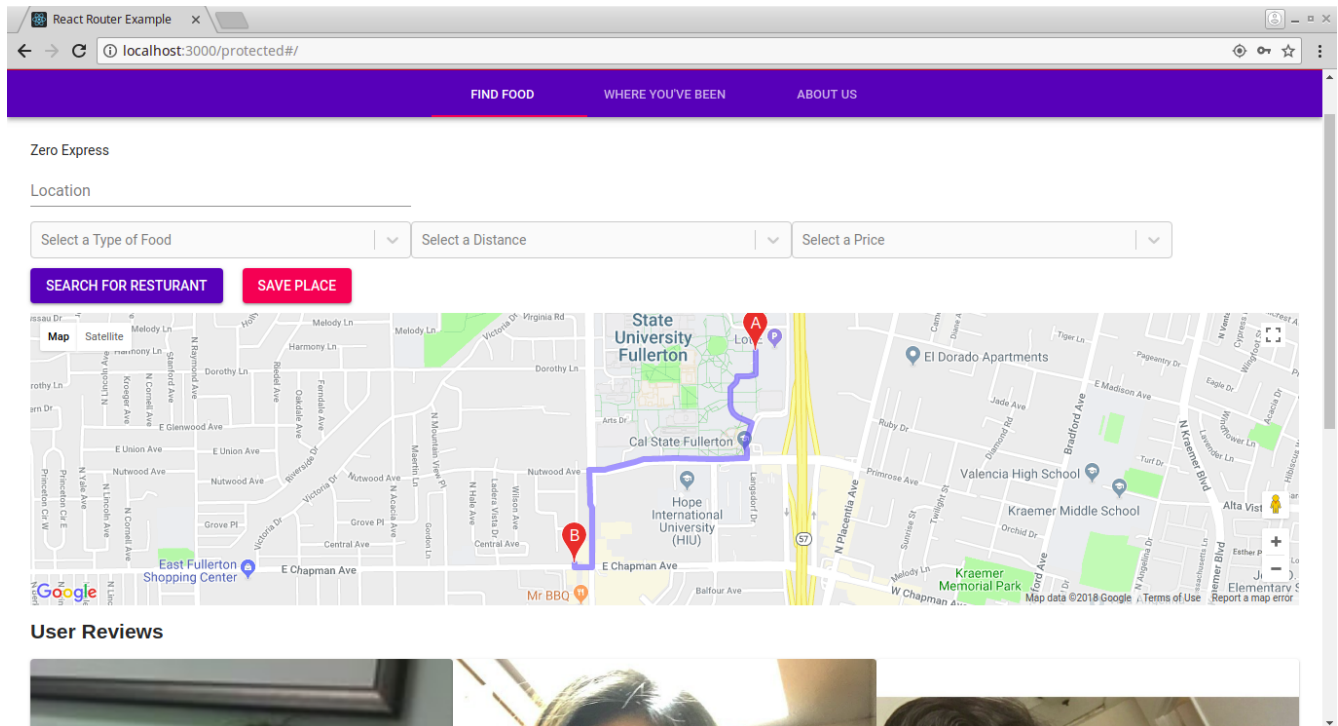

This is the main login page where previous users can login or new users can create an account to use the site.

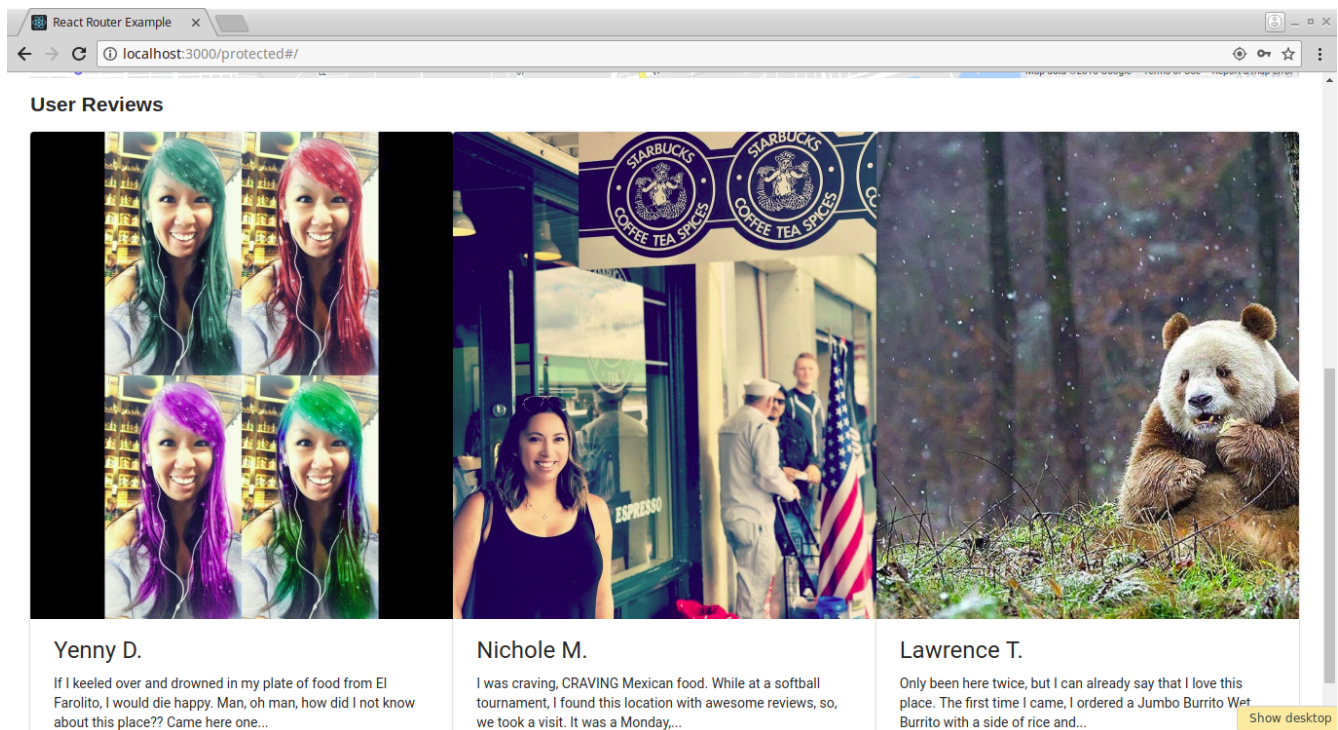

Home Page

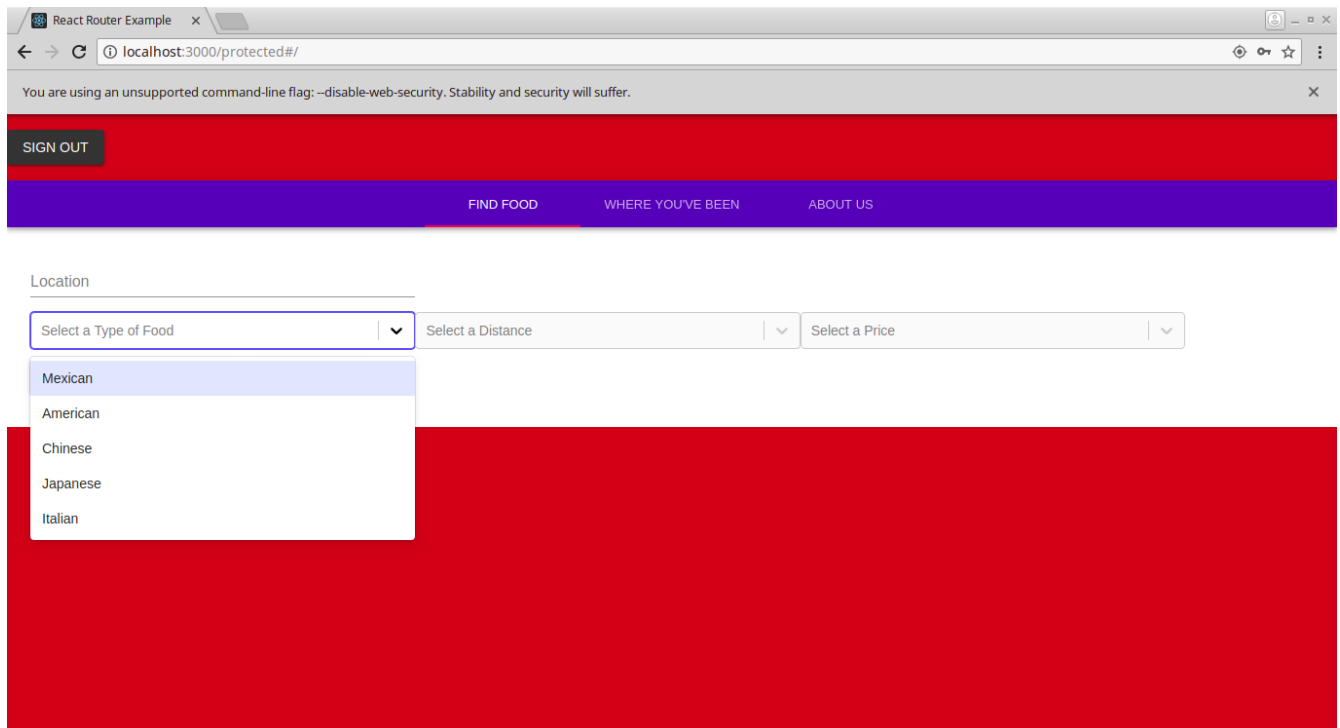

From the home page, you can enter an address to search for restaurants near the area.

Pressing the click me button without any parameters will find a random restaurant near your current location.

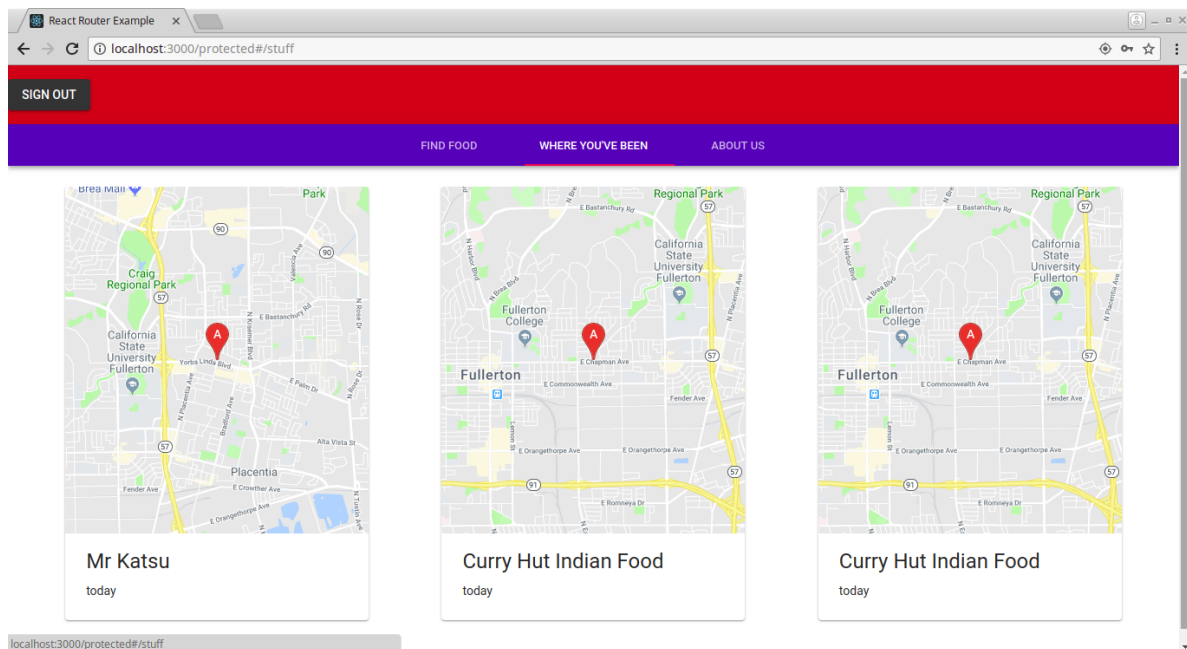

The search will also generate a list of reviews that users submitted

You can also change the parameters by the type of food you want to eat, the distance away the restaurant is from you, and the cost of the food at the restaurant. You can also press the save button to save the restaurant information to the list of restaurants you been.

Where you've been Tab

The where you've been tab shows the locations of all the restaurants you have visited by using this website.
